Edward Salazar : A Free Kill before purchasing it in order to gage whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised A Free Kill:

1 of 1 people found the following review helpful. Florida Legislature's NegligenceBy Mike HHeart wrenching account of the loss of a child and the failure of the Florida Legislature to fairly compensate it's residents from the negligence of State supported medical professionals, facilities or operations. Florida Legislators, as well as any compassionate human being, should recognize that the State has a moral and ethical obligation to anyone harmed by their negligence. If their intent was to avoid "excessive monetary judgements" I hope this book will convince them to rewrite the Statute to provide just compensation to the affected individuals and families. 1 of 1 people found the following review helpful. VERY moving, easy to read By Rick I couldn't put it down. Actually brought tears to my eyes several times. I found myself feeling like I was in the author's shoes throughout the entire time. 1 of 1 people found the following review helpful. Five Stars By jeff olseth A real life tragedy and expose on the medical and legal systems you will want to know about

By society's standards, Christopher John Salazar wasn't very significant. He wasn't famous; he wasn't a political figure; he wasn't a scholar. In fact, he never graduated from college. To his family and friends, he was very significant and an amazing human being, son, and a devoted father. So how did he die after 18 days of steady progress in an intensive care unit, in the care of trained professionals? This is a true story as told by the father of Christopher, about how a hospital got away with "a free kill" through a little know law in the state of Florida. About the Author: Ed Salazar, RRT, CPFT, RPSGT At the time of this writing, I have been a respiratory therapist for over 40 years. I relocated from Adrian Michigan to South Florida in 1972 to attend Broward College to study respiratory therapy technology. From the time I graduated in 1974 until today, I have served as a staff therapist, shift supervisor, assistant director, and technical director for various cardiopulmonary services in South Florida. As a clinical therapist, I have worked in adult, pediatric, and neonatal intensive care units. I have been an instructor for pulmonary function technology in a collegiate respiratory therapy program and I have been an instructor for mechanical ventilation for critical care transport programs. Thanks to the patience and coaching from my editor and publisher, this book has been brought to press. I sincerely hope you find reading it worth your time, and that the information it contains might help you protect yourself and those you love while under the care of medical professionals.
