This is an excellent assessment for therapist to utilize to determined children's behavior ...By Kenneth IlesThis is an excellent assessment for therapist to utilize to determined children's behavior symptoms in a high conflict divorce. It is especially helpful in cases of negative parental influence and for the children's patterns of non-cooperation with court ordered parenting time. I like it very much because of its cost effectiveness verses other remedies, like professional mediation. Attachment based pathogenic parenting, currently causes way to much litigation. This ABA assessment would contribute to less time in court proceedings. It would give the mental health clinicians an excellent tool to provide to the court for their decision making process. This single case design is a scientifically established for determining treatment efficacy. Charting of behaviors from normal to the most severe are established by the therapist with specific guidelines to follow. The environments interchange from the favored, narcissistic parent to the targeted parent. Established rating scales are established. This booklet also explains the ABAB remedy protocol. The attachment based reenactment trauma causes deep psychological damages to the child. A key feature is time away from the pathogenic parenting needs to be confirmed so the child recovery to healthy and normal development can take place. Goal is to visit with both parents with the child being healthy, normal and authentic. 0 of 0 people found the following review helpful. A must read for all probate judges! By ;^) This abbreviated reiteration of Foundations is more accessible and provides a lot of useful models for understanding the epidemic social blight that is Parental Alienation. Useful for parents in conflict with spouse over children, psychological professionals and legal professionals. 2 of 2 people found the following review helpful. Five Stars By Customer All good Assessing the cause of parent-child conflict following divorce can be a complex undertaking, especially in the context of allegations that one parent is exercising negative parental influence on the child that undermines the child's relationship with the other parent. While securing testimony or conducting an extensive child custody evaluation are ways to assess the possible causes of parent-child conflict and allegations of negative parental influence, a more scientifically-based approach offers an alternative solution. Single-case research designs are an established scientific methodology for determining causality as well as treatment efficacy. A Single-Case Assessment and Remedy protocol offers the Court an empirically based approach for systematically collecting the information on child and family relationships that is needed to address the custody decisions before the Court.
