A WELCOME EXPLANATION OF THE INCREASING GLOBAL RECOGNITION OF COMPETITION LAW INTERNATIONALLY By Phillip Taylor MBE A WELCOME EXPLANATION OF THE INCREASING GLOBAL RECOGNITION OF COMPETITION LAW INTERNATIONALLY An appreciation by Phillip Taylor MBE and Elizabeth Taylor of Richmond Green Chambers For this excellent new handbook we have described it to the publishers, Edward Elgar, in the following succinct way: Comparative Competition Law provides a welcome scholarly examination of the key global issues that impact the way law and policy operate, as the proliferation of anti-trust regimes over the past 25 years has led to a global recognition of competition law. "And it is exactly that - a welcome new compilation of research views on international competition law which will be a book to treasure for legal academics. It does examine in excellent academic detail the key global issues which we face and the way law and policy operate as our international community becomes more integrated legally with the growth of the number of anti-trust regimes since the early 1990s. This research handbook on Comparative Competition Law was specially commissioned by Elgar with original chapters on descriptive material from legal academics across the continents including contributions from the United States, Europe, Japan, India, China, South America, and Australia. Each contributor is to be congratulated for providing an interwoven patchwork synthesis of how current competition issues are dealt with today by examination of the contrasting views and approaches taken. The book examines in a most useful academic style these differing approaches which have been taken in the different major jurisdictions. It does so at a time when the original aims behind the creation of the European Union are facing a major new test for its future direction in the second decade of the 21st century as the fourth industrial revolution involving information technology develops. The publication date is stated as 2015 and the book is available in print form and online.

Comparative Competition Law examines the key global issues facing competition law and policy. This volume's specially commissioned chapters by leading writers from the United States, Europe, Asia, South America, and Australia provide a synthesis of how these current issues are addressed by drawing on the approaches taken in different jurisdictions around the world. Expert contributors examine the regulation of core competitive conduct by comparing substantive law approaches in the US and the EU. The book then explores issues of enforcement - such as the regulator's powers, whether to criminalize anti-competitive conduct, the degree to which private enforcement ought to be encouraged, and the extraterritorial scope of domestic laws. Finally, the book discusses how competition law is being implemented in a variety of countries, including Japan, China, Brazil, Chile, and Colombia. This scholarly analysis of the key substantive, procedural, and remedial challenges facing global competition law policymakers offers a comparative framework to facilitate a better understanding of relevant policies. This collection of global perspectives will be of great interest to scholars and students of competition law, microeconomics, and regulatory studies. Competition law regulators, policy makers, and law practitioners will also find this book an invaluable resource. Contributors include: R. Burgess, E. Buttigieg, M.A. Carrier, L. Cejnar, J. 'Ultimately, the key to this book's success is the editors' ability to mobilise a remarkable group of authors with affiliation to various institutions and professions from different countries. It most certainly fills the gap in the literature with its insightful analysis of the numerous competition law concerns in a wide selection of countries, including developing jurisdictions.' --European Competition Law 'Comparative Competition Law provides a welcome scholarly examination of the key global issues that impact the way law and policy operate, as the proliferation of anti-trust regimes over the past 25 years has led to a global recognition of competition law.' --Phillip Taylor MBE and Elizabeth Taylor, Richmond Green Chambers, UK 'It is impossible to be a competition law practitioner without an understanding of competition regulation in the world's leading economies. It is equally impossible to practice in the area without a detailed understanding of economics. This collection of essays by leading internationally acclaimed academics and practitioners makes an important contribution to both areas. There are excellent chapters that explain the key areas of economic theory, as well as informative chapters on international trends. This collection will prove to be an indispensable addition to the library of any serious competition lawyer.' --The Hon Ray Finkelstein QC, former President of the Australian Competition Tribunal, former Judge of the Federal Court of Australia About the Author Edited by John Duns, Associate Professor, Monash University Faculty of Law, Arlen Duke, Senior Lecturer, Melbourne Law School and Brendan Sweeney, Adjunct Associate Professor of Law, Monash University, Australia
